The Construction ADR SUMMIT

October 8-9, 2015
Hilton Austin
Austin, TX

Program Co-Sponsors:

DEAR COLLEAGUES:

A summit is often described as a strategic conversation that brings together different viewpoints within a community to talk about complex issues affecting its constituents. A summit convenes the leaders of the profession, industry, or cause, as well as internal and external stakeholders who offer provocative and multidisciplinary perspectives. The Forum's Construction ADR Summit at the Fall 2015 Meeting gathers the construction industry's major stakeholders in alternative dispute resolution, including renowned practitioners, top service providers, and leading academics to assess whether ADR is achieving its intended purposes. Staged at the Hilton Austin on October 8-9, 2015, the Construction ADR Summit takes you to an inviting destination where you will find great food, drink, music, and fun.

The one-and-a-half day program takes an in-depth look at the past, present, and future of ADR in the construction industry. While the program will offer much for the construction advocate, it will also appeal to both transactional lawyers and current or aspiring neutrals.

Program highlights include a discussion by acclaimed mediators, Tony Piazza and Eric Green, and presentations on international arbitrations, drafting effective ADR clauses, mediating complex and multi-party defect cases, appealing arbitration awards and new appellate arbitration rules, best use of Dispute Resolution Boards, advocacy and cost-saving tips from top arbitrators, thoughts on the business of being a neutral, and how to address deception in mediation. For young lawyers, there is a special practicum available on Wednesday afternoon on advocacy in mediation. The Construction ADR Summit is also approved for AAA ACE credit.

Thursday evening's Welcome Reception is a can't-miss occasion at Brazos Hall, Austin's premier event and music venue, just blocks from the hotel. Friday features separate luncheon sessions hosted by the Forum's Divisions, giving you the opportunity to choose from among many topics and speakers and network in a smaller setting. Spouses and guests are welcome to attend a morning breakfast on Thursday with a short program on surviving "dispute resolution" in your marriage to a construction lawyer. Later that day, spouses and guests can attend a line dancing and two steppin' class at Brazos Hall.

So bring along your cowboy boots and hats, and join us for a memorable Forum experience that combines advanced construction CLE, the fellowship of your colleagues, and the legendary Austin music scene!

PLENARY I:

Has Arbitration Fulfilled its Promise? Both Sides of the Debate

Is arbitration an efficient, economical, and effective alternative to courtroom litigation? Or has it become plagued with high costs and delays, such that it is now failing of its essential purpose? Listen to both sides of this lively debate.

William K. Andrews (*AAA, ACCL)
Andrews Myers, P.C. | Houston, TX

WELCOME FROM THE CHAIR AND OPENING REMARKS

9:45 A.M. - 10:45 A.M.

PLENARY II:

Drafting an Arbitration Clause That Works

Before you can draft an arbitration clause, you need to know your client's objectives. Have you thought about the questions you need to ask your client to draft an arbitration clause that meets these objectives? Does your client favor low cost and efficiency at the expense of prudence and procedure? Can you have both? What is the best way to manage discovery, such as depositions and ESI? Should you use standard clauses and industry rules from AAA, JAMS or CPR? What are the pros and cons of each? What role should experts play? How will you address issues such as consolidation, joinder, and appellate issues?

11:00 A.M. – 12:00 P.M.

WORKSHOP A

Mediating the Multi-Party Construction Defect Case

Multi-party construction defect cases require an effective mediation strategy. Mediators and participants alike must take proactive measures in order for the case to settle. How will the mediator schedule and manage the process? Can you compel attendance by necessary non-parties? What is the most effective way to handle insurers and coverage issues? Should the parties exchange position statements or expert reports and, if so, how? Do you need mediations within the mediation? And what settlement and post-mediation issues should you plan for on the front end?

PROGRAM SCHEDULE

11:00 A.M. – 12:00 P.M.

WORKSHOP B

Demystifying International Arbitration

To many construction lawyers, international arbitration is quite foreign, even though it has become increasingly common due to the growing global marketplace. This session will focus on some of the distinctive aspects of international arbitration, as well as some lessons learned that can be applied to domestic dispute resolution.

PLENARY III:

Blue Chip Mediation: Settling Complex Construction Disputes

When a construction dispute involves new technologies that can only be understood by expert testimony, complex scheduling issues involving multiple trades, or large “bet the company” claims, the mediation process itself takes on an added significance. In this session, we will learn from two of the top mediators in the industry about what it takes to get the complex cases resolved.

WORKSHOP C

What’s the Appeal of Arbitration? Overturning Arbitration Awards and the New Appellate Rules of Arbitration

Binding arbitration brings with it the notion that an award cannot be appealed absent certain circumstances. The courts have grappled with those circumstances over the years, sometimes with inconstant standards and results. Recently, to address industry concerns, providers have responded with new arbitration rules on reviewing, vacating, confirming, or otherwise appealing awards. This session tackles court and arbitral appeals head on.

PROGRAM SCHEDULE

2:45 P.M. – 3:45 P.M.

WORKSHOP D

Dispute Review Boards and Other ADR Alternatives

DRBs are statistically very successful as a “real time” ADR alternative currently in use by many public agencies. Many subcontractor/supplier clients (and their lawyers) are unaware that their contracts already mandate use of DRBs or Project Neutrals. This session focuses on the effective use of DRBs and Project Neutrals, and how counsel can assist clients throughout the DRB process. This session also explores ways to avoid problems with DRBs, and other ADR alternatives, such as Dispute Adjudication Boards, Initial Decision Makers, project mediators, and special masters.

PLENARY V:

The View from the Tower: New Perspectives on ADR

This would not be an ADR Summit without insight from the best and brightest in academia. Tom Stipanowich, Academic Director of Pepperdine University School of Law's Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution, will present compelling new data on ADR trends: What does the industry expect from ADR? Has ADR delivered on its promise? How will the recent past shape the future? Next, Stan Sklar, Executive Director of DePaul University College of Law's Center for Dispute Resolution, discusses the unique nature of arbitration, how lawyers have hijacked the process and eroded its effectiveness, and how to debunk arbitration myths to get it back. Finally, Dean Thomson presents up-to-date nationwide survey data from arbitrators on their general preferences and the application of the most commonly used arbitration rules.

WORKSHOP E

Managing the Arbitration Process to Reduce Costs Without Sacrificing Positive Results

Arbitration should be synonymous with efficiency and low cost, but it's not. So how do the parties recapture the spirit and intent of ADR in the face of litigants set in their tried and true courtroom ways? This session provides useful tools to recapture the effectiveness of arbitration by managing the ADR provider and your arbitrators, controlling the scope and cost of discovery, truncating the presentation of evidence, and effectively and efficiently using expert witnesses to reduce cost and time in arbitration – all without compromising your ability to present or defend your case.

WORKSHOP F

The Business of Becoming an ADR Neutral

Many seasoned lawyers decide to become ADR neutrals, but no one teaches you how to make it work. This session explores topics such as:

- the value of ADR training and industry certifications;
- balancing an ADR career with an active law practice;
- discussing your transition to ADR with your law partners;
- weighing the pros and cons of associating with a larger law firm or ADR group;
- marketing, advertising and networking in an effective manner to generate business;
- overcoming the “Catch-22” of an ADR practice—How to develop a track record so as to demonstrate competence; and
- liability insurance and managing conflicts.

PLENARY VI:

In Defense of Lying: The Ethics of Deception in Mediation

Some level of deception inevitably occurs in mediation. Whether phrased as “gamesmanship” or “puffery,” the parties distrust one another, and mediators are trained not to believe much of what they are told by the participants. What is an acceptable amount of deception during the mediation process? At what point is deception destructive and unethical? Do the Model Rules of Professional Conduct apply to mediators? If not, why not? This session will explore lies and deception at mediation from both sides of the issue and explore whether it is a legitimate part of the mediation process.

YOUNG LAWYERS CONSTRUCTION PRACTICUM - ADVOCACY IN MEDIATION

With the advent of ADR, virtually every construction dispute is mediated before it goes to arbitration or trial. While related, the skills necessary to be an effective advocate for your client at the mediation of a construction case differ from those used in a courtroom.

Please join us for a practicum with several nationally-recognized construction attorneys who will discuss how to be an effective advocate in a mediation setting.

Topics will include:

- Selecting a mediator.
- Tailoring the mediation process to address the needs of your case.
- Preparing your clients for mediation.
- How to draft an effective mediation statement.
- The opening or plenary session.
- Using experts, demonstrative exhibits, and PowerPoint presentations to drive home your key points.
- Private sessions with the mediator.

Presented by: Division 1 – Litigation and Dispute Resolution; the Young Lawyers Division; and the Forum Leadership Circle.

Separate Registration Fee: $50/person
